

Claudia Koch

For Claudia Koch, colours are like “perfume that one breathes deep into one’s lungs”. It is these vivid colours – oranges, yellows, turquoise – as well as wit, energy and movement, that characterize her work, especially the mobile Plexiglass sculptures and highly colourful paintings that are on show in Davos. Koch is herself a colourful cosmopolitan character, born in Peru and now living in Founex, Switzerland. She experiments with materials of every kind in her work and has exhibited widely, most recently in Zurich, Lucerne, Cologne-Geneva, St Moritz and her homeland, Peru.
